SPRINGFIELD — Today, Governor Charlie Baker highlighted the recent 2020 Affordable Rental Housing Awards for the development of affordable housing at the virtual Western Massachusetts Developers Conference. The 2020 Affordable Rental Housing Awards will result in the production or preservation of more than 2,400 housing units, including 2,166 affordable rental units in communities across the Commonwealth. Through this round of awards, the Baker-Polito Administration has provided more than $105.7 million in direct funding and allocated $53 million in state and federal tax credits to 28 projects in 19 communities.

“Our administration has made housing a priority, including injecting $1.1 billion into the affordable housing ecosystem, filing zoning reform legislation, and signing the largest Housing Bond Bill in our state’s history,” said Governor Charlie Baker. “Keeping families stable and increasing the supply of affordable housing in Massachusetts is vital for our future and I am pleased to celebrate this most recent round of housing development awards and the new homes they will provide for residents.”

“These awards will create or preserve more than two thousand units across the Commonwealth, creating opportunities for residents to access stable housing and community,” said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. “It is vital we continue to make long-term investments in Massachusetts’ housing portfolio as we face the current crisis, and we are pleased to see these projects move forward with $100 million in state funding.”

The $53 million allocation of state and federal tax credits will create approximately $370 million in equity for project sponsors. This award round includes eight projects that will build new affordable housing for seniors, five adaptive reuse projects that will turn historic buildings into new housing, and six projects that will preserve existing affordable housing and ensure communities maintain affordability. New affordable housing will be created in every region of the state, and more than 20% of the total units will be affordable to extremely low-income households.

“It is clear that safe and stable housing is critical for economic advancement, public health, and preventing virus spread, and we remain committed to making investments and keeping construction projects on track,” said Housing and Economic Development Secretary Mike Kennealy. “We are pleased that construction has remained an essential business as we work to expand housing at all income levels in every part of Massachusetts.”

The Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) supports the development of affordable housing through multiple funding rounds throughout the year. Last spring, DHCD moved forward on \$16 million in funding to support nine permanent supportive housing developments

\(https://cedac.org/blog/dhcd-awards-16-million-to-produce-or-preserve-critical-supportive-housing-for-vulnerable-populations/\) for vulnerable populations. Throughout the COVID-19 emergency, DHCD has continued to work with affordable housing developers to ensure a strong pipeline of new construction and preservation projects.

"Massachusetts has a deep network of responsible, committed non-profit developers who deliver high-quality housing for communities across the Commonwealth," said Housing and Community Development Undersecretary Jennifer Maddox. "We are thrilled to see housing projects for families, seniors, and adults transitioning out of homelessness among the 28 projects we are supporting. Affordable and mixed-income housing is an important part of a strong housing market and healthy neighborhoods, and we will continue to make substantial investments in the future of affordable housing in Massachusetts."

The Baker-Polito Administration has shown a deep commitment to increasing the production of housing across income levels. Since 2015, the administration has invested more than $1.1 billion in affordable housing, resulting in the production and preservation of more than 20,000 housing units, including 18,000 affordable units. In 2018, Governor Baker signed the largest housing bond bill

\(/news/governor-baker-signs-18-billion-affordable-housing-bill-to-increase-housing-production\) in Massachusetts history, committing more than $1.8 billion to the future of affordable housing production and preservation. This year, the administration filed economic development legislation titled An Act Enabling Partnerships for Growth that includes substantial new funding for affordable and climate-resilient housing, as well as targeted zoning reforms to advance new housing production. The administration has also advanced the development of more than 14,000 mixed-income housing units through the successful MassWorks Infrastructure Program \(/service-details/massworks-infrastructure-grants\), reformed the Housing Development Incentive Program \(/service-details/housing-development-incentive-program-hdip\), and worked with communities to implement smart-growth development and planning efforts.

Last week, the Baker-Polito Administration announced the Eviction Diversion Initiative \(/news/baker-polito-administration-announces-comprehensive-eviction-diversion-initiative-to-keep\), which aims to help thousands of households remain housed during the COVID-19 emergency. The initiative includes $100 million for rental assistance, $50 million for rapid rehousing efforts, and new funding for mediation and legal assistance for tenants in the eviction process.

2020 Affordable Housing Awards

Julia Bancroft School is one of two closed school buildings that the town of Auburn has made available for development. The town selected Pennrose Developer through a locally led process to rehabilitate both schools as senior housing. DHCD will support the redevelopment of the Julia Bancroft School, with federal and state low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. When work is complete, the project will offer 60 residential units. Forty-five units will be affordable to seniors earning less than 60% of area median income (AMI), with six units further restricted for seniors earning less than 30% of AMI. As required by DHCD, the sponsor will make supportive services available to senior residents of Julia Bancroft.

Anchor Point I is the first phase of a two-phase new construction project in Beverly. The project sponsor is the non-profit Harborlight Community Partners. DHCD will support the project with federal and state low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Beverly also will support the project with local funds. When complete, Anchor Point I will offer 38 rental units affordable to households earning less than 60% of AMI, with ten units further restricted for extremely low-income households earning less than 30% of AMI.

250 Centre Street is a new construction project in Boston's Jamaica Plain neighborhood. The sponsor is the non-profit The Community Builders (TCB). 250 Centre Street will be TCB's second project located in close proximity to the Jackson Square subway/bus terminal. Over the past decade, TCB and several other non-profit developers have built over 400 units in various prime locations on Centre Street, as well as several hundred additional units nearby. DHCD will support 250 Centre Street with federal and state low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Boston also will support the project with local funds and 250 Centre Street will offer 110 mixed-income residential units. Fifty-six units will be affordable to households earning less than 60% of AMI, with 15 units further restricted for households earning less than 30% of AMI and making the transition from homelessness.

288 Harrison Residences is a new construction project in Boston. The sponsor is Beacon Communities. DHCD will support Harrison Residences with project-based vouchers. The City of Boston will support the project with local funds. The project will offer 85 total residential units for families, with 17 units restricted for households earning less than 30% of AMI, including households making the transition from homelessness.

3368 Washington Street is a new construction, mixed-income project in Jamaica Plain. The project sponsors are the non-profits Pine Street Inn, Inc., and The Community Builders. The project is transit-oriented and located near numerous retail and service opportunities. DHCD will support the project with federal and state low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Boston also will provide significant funding in support of 3368 Washington Street. When complete, the project will offer 202 total units, with 156 units restricted for individuals earning less than 30% of AMI. In most cases, these individuals will be transitioning from homelessness and eligible to receive extensive support services from Pine Street Inn.

41 LaGrange Street 4% and 9% are the two components of a new construction tower in downtown Boston, on the edge of Chinatown. The LaGrange Street project is transit-oriented and located less than half a mile from a major Boston hospital. The sponsor is the non-profit St. Francis House, Inc., in partnership with the non-profit Planning Office of Urban Affairs (Archdiocese of Boston). The two non-profits previously worked together on a now-completed adaptive re-use project on the same site. DHCD will support LaGrange Street 4% and 9% with federal and state low income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Boston also will support the project with local funds. When complete, LaGrange Street will offer 94 total units of mixed-income housing. Many units will be affordable to households earning less than 60% of AMI, including up to 50 units further restricted for extremely low-income households earning less than 30% of AMI.

41 North Margin Street is a new construction project in Boston's historic North End. The sponsor is the non-profit East Boston Community Development Corporation, with Affirmative Investments serving as consultant. DHCD will support this project for seniors with low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Boston also will support the project with substantial local funds. When completed, 41 North Margin will offer 23 units affordable to seniors earning less than 60% of AMI. Six units will be further restricted for seniors earning less than 30% of AMI and making the transition from homelessness. As required by DHCD, the non-profit sponsor also will make supportive services available to residents of 41 North Margin Street.

Bartlett Station D is a new construction project near Nubian Square in Boston's Roxbury neighborhood. The sponsor is the non-profit Preservation of Affordable Housing (POAH), working with the non-profit Nuestra Comunidad. Bartlett Station D will be the third project on this prime site on Washington Street, with several additional projects still in the development phase. DHCD will support the project with federal and state low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Boston also will provide funds to Bartlett Station D, which will offer 50 units of housing for seniors. Forty-four units will be restricted for seniors earning less than 60% of AMI, with eight units further restricted for seniors earning less than 30% of AMI and transitioning from homelessness. As required by DHCD, POAH and Nuestra Comunidad will make supportive services – including health care services – available to residents of Bartlett Station D.

Four Corners Plaza is a new construction project in Dorchester. The sponsor is the non-profit Codman Square Neighborhood Development Corporation. DHCD will support the project with low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds; the project is expected to move to construction early in 2021. When completed, Four Corners Plaza will offer 35 units of housing affordable for households earning less than 60% of AMI. Eight units will be further restricted for households earning less than 30% of AMI and making the transition from homelessness.

J.J. Carroll is a new construction project for seniors, built to Passive House standards, in the Brighton neighborhood of Boston. The sponsor is the non-profit 2Life Communities. The new development will create in 142 additional units on a site adjacent to 2Life's existing residential campus and offices. DHCD will support J.J. Carroll with federal and state low-income housing tax credits and subsidy funds. The City of Boston also will provide substantial support to the project with local funds. J.J. Carroll will offer 142 total units, with 141 units affordable to seniors earning less than 60% of AMI. Twenty-nine units will be further restricted for seniors earning less than 30% of AMI, and, in many cases, transitioning from homelessness. The new project will be connected to the existing senior properties on the 2Life campus; new tenants will have access to the robust services offered to all residents of the campus. 2Life also intends to enter into a partnership with the healthcare provider P.A.C.E. to help serve tenants' medical needs.

Mission Main is a large-scale preservation/rehabilitation project located in Boston. The sponsor is WinnDevelopment. The project – originally one of the largest public housing projects in Boston – consists of multiple buildings with over 500 rental units. Mission Main is located on Huntington Avenue, a few blocks from the Museum of Fine Arts, Northeastern University, and the Mission Hill neighborhood of Boston. Mission Main previously received funding from the federal HOPE VI program as well as state support for an earlier rehabilitation project. The construction work now proposed will result in extensive necessary rehabilitation to most of the buildings and units in the project. DHCD will support the rehabilitation with federal and state low-income housing tax credits. When work is complete, Mission Main will feature 535 total units. Four hundred forty-five units will be affordable to households earning less than 60% of AMI, with 81 units further restricted for households earning less than 30% of AMI.
